

Grace Thompson, SPHR
Lendor Consulting
Business Coach

I am a Human Resources professional with over fifteen (15) years of experience, which includes coaching executive leaders for the past nine years. I have worked in the financial, engineering, music, television, chemical, and association industries. Key roles have been in the areas of Benefits, Compensation, Learning & Development, Recruitment & Selection, and Employee Relations. In each of these roles, I have coached and developed executives and non-management staff, focusing on achieving peak performance through relationship management. My years of experience in both the for-profit and not-for-profit sectors give me a unique perspective of what is needed for success.

At Lendor Consulting I coach clients in their quest to create and live their “Personal Legend” in their professional and personal lives. My client base consists of individuals seeking professional development, transitioning into or out of the workforce, and/or experiencing life changes resulting from an empty nest or divorce.

I received my M.A. in Human Resources Management from the New School in New York. I am also certified in the following assessment tools: Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI), Benchmark 360°, and the Tilt 360°. I remain active in the HR community by participating on committees with The Triangle Society of Human Resources Management (TSHRM), The RDU Chapter of the National Black MBA Association (NBMBA), and the Triangle Organizational Development Network (TODN).
